The Ypsilantian.

M. T. WOODRUFF.

FRIDAY, APRIL 4, 1884.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

Our Ypsilanti manufacturer suggests a novel employment for convict labor. He would have it employed by the government in building a ship canal from Lake Michigan to the mouth of the Mississippi.

It would have been more manly for the getter-up of the "baswood" poster to have given his place of business and name.

Are some of our farmers brutes? The statement quoted in our local columns to-day regarding the wholesale death of sheep from starvation and exposure would indicate as much. The character of a man who will permit a dumb brute to perish rather than buy it a little grain is not to be envied; rather more angelic is he who will kill the beast to save outlay.

If our people imagine any one concern is to support the burned of advertising the place, or that any committee of a few men will spend their time gratuitously to advance public interests, they are mistaken. A continued push may be given without much cost, if all unite in the work.

The March number of THE YPSILANTIAN's monthly edition is out, although late, and will be followed next week by the April number. The circulation so far has been:

January..... 66,000
February, (three editions)..... 190,000
March..... 49,000

Total..... 305,000

Our guarantee to advertisers has been fifty thousand copies per month. This we have more than doubled. We hope future advertisers may be as well treated.

Prof. Willits thinks Edmunds is the choice of Michigan Republicans.

It seems that the mob at Cincinnati was made up of Socialists—a class which will become the bane of the United States as it is of European nations.

The recent case in this city is an example of a too general carelessness regarding marriage vows, and illustrates with how little thought many young people enter upon a relation that should be life-long in its duration. "Love matches," with too many, are a humbug, and a greater restriction on the part of parents would tend to happier unions. But parents and young people are not alone to blame; such men as he who celebrated this ceremony are more in the wrong. Dr. Stocking had a reputation for performing clandestine services which brought him numerous pieces of gold. What a hollow mockery it must have been for him to make a religious rite of this particular service, when any man of the most ordinary sense would have known something was wrong! "Whom God hath joined" is blasphemy when uttered thus! But Dr. Stocking was amenable to civil as well as religious law, and violated it as well. He used the beautiful service of his church to put money in his purse, and, because there was a fee attached to the registry, neglected to report the marriage to the civil authorities. Dr. Stocking's marriage mill became known through channels similar to those by which the greater criminal, the abortionist, makes the acquaintance of his victims. One client sends others, and the "cunning" trick of a secret marriage was easy of accomplishment. We may say what we will of the villainy of the man, the folly of the woman, and the results of such a case; but when it comes to the third party in the crime, we have yet to hear the measure of blame meted out to him that his act deserves.

A WIDE AWAKE DRUGGIST.—Mr. Frank Smith is always wide awake in his business, and spares no pains to secure the best of every article in his line. He has secured the agency for the celebrated Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption. The only certain cure known for consumption, coughs, colds, hoarseness, asthma, hay fever, bronchitis, or any affection of the throat and lungs. Sold on positive guarantee. Will give you a trial bottle free. Regular size $1.

THE town of Fort Ross, Sonoma county, Cal., was founded 30 years ago. The population soon numbered 100 families, at which number it has remained ever since; but in all the years of its existence there has never been a death in town, and its attractive little cemetery has never contained a grave. The hotel of the town embraces the blockhouse built by the Russian commandant 70 years ago when that was one of the frontier posts.

GRIGGS' GLYCERINE SALVE.—The best on earth can truly be said of Griggs' Glycerine Salve, which is sure cure for cuts, bruises, scalds, burns, wounds, and all other sores. Will positively cure piles, tetter, and all skin eruptions. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Only 25 cents. For nobody Frank Smith.

According to U. S. Consul Ballou, says the Scientific American, horse flesh is largely eaten in Alsace, Germany. The choice cuts are retailed for about eight cents per pound, the ordinary six cents. A large quantity is used in the manufacture of sausages. All horses are before and after being killed given a strict examination, and if found in any way diseased are rejected. In Strasburg the flesh of 30 horses is eaten every week.

Mrs. Frank Leslie announced her engagement last week by sending a printed slip to all New York papers, on which was stated when the marquis had first proposed to her, why she could not then accept his offer, and why she did so lately, together with an elaborate sketch of her future husband's life.

BUCLEIN'S ARNICA SALVE.—Is the best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Frank Smith.

The prevailing opinion regarding the girl of the period is unjust. A few decades back she spun, wove, knit, &c. These things have given way to modern machinery. She has higher planes, is more of an orator, &c. Her dress is becoming. She takes Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic, which clears the complexion, drives away pimples and cures all diseases of the stomach, liver and kidneys. Fifty cents of F. Smith ill.

In 1828 the property on which St. Patrick's cathedral, New York, now stands was sold on a mortgage foreclosure, leaving $760 to Dennis Doyle. The county took charge of this sum, until the other day James Doyle of Boston proved himself the heir to it. It had grown to $17,000.

Mr. Paddock, Postmaster at Wolcott, N. Y., says: "I can safely recommend Rheumatic Syrup to all who are suffering with indigestion and rheumatism, as one of the surest and best remedies ever offered to the public. I have taken many so-called remedies, but found no relief until I commenced the use of the Syrup, and after three weeks I had no pain, and could move around as well as ever. My difficulty was in my hips and back, and I feared I had some kind of kidney affection, but I am now entirely free from it and as well as ever."

NOR A HUMBUG.—Colonel Richard Frothingham Lyons, N. Y., says that by the use of a few bottles of Rheumatic Syrup, he was completely cured of a very severe attack of rheumatism, which confined him to his room for months. He also said that he had no faith in patent medicines, but has changed his mind since using Rheumatic Syrup.

CARES OF LIFE.—As we come to them they are received, borne with and passed over with no more than a thought, if we are in the enjoyment of health, but if suffering with piles or skin disease of any kind they magnify a hundred fold. Fred Ingram, the druggist, has Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy which is an absolute cure for any affection of this kind and is sold at 50 cents each.

Mackay's new cable is to be ready for business August 1.

CAUSE AND EFFECT.—At times symptoms of indigestion are present, uneasiness of the stomach, etc., a moisture-like perspiration, producing itching at night, or when one is warm, cause the piles. The effect is immediate relief upon the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy, which costs you but 50 cents and is sold by Fred Ingram.

Sleepless nights, made miserable by that terrible cough, Shiloh's Cure is the remedy for you. For sale by Frank Smith.

A plate of SOLID GOLD 14-210 karats fine is soldered on each side of a plate of hard nickel composition metal, and the three are then passed between polished steel rollers. From this plate the various parts of the cases—backs, centers, bezels, etc. are cut and shaped by dies and formers. The gold is thick enough to admit of all kinds of chasing, engraving, and engine-turning. The composition metal gives it needed strength, stiffness and solidity, while the written guarantee of the manufacturers warranting each case to wear twenty years proves that it contains all the gold that can possibly be needed. This guarantee is given from actual results, as many of these cases have been worn perfectly smooth by years of use without wearing through the gold.

McGRANAHAN, Dug., Int. Rev., 2d Div., Iowa. I have used one of your JEWEL CASES and Gold Watch Cases for seventeen years. I bought it second-hand and know of its having been used before I got it, but do not know how long. It looks good now, but does not seem to have been used. It is a filled case until so informed by a jeweler a short time since. I most cheerfully recommend your cases to be all they are represented to be, and trust you.

O. MCGRAHAN, Dug., Int. Rev., 2d Div., Iowa. I send you a copy of my Watch Case Catalogue, No. 1, for handsome Illustrated Pamphlet showing how James Bond and Keyless Watch Cases are made.

SEALED UNTO HIM.

A STORY OF THE EARLY DAYS OF MORMONISM.

BY JOAQUIN MILLER,
AUTHOR OF "SONGS OF THE SIBERIAS," "THE DANITES," "MEMORIE AND RIME," ETC.

CHAPTER III. A LOST WOMAN.

As day began to blossom dimly on the peaks, as if they were mighty flowers in a garden kissing heaven, we came to another little willow-lined stream, crossed it, and silently drew the wagons in a little circle in the shelter of large leaning willows, and unyoked the patient and weary cattle. It had been nearly dark a long time. That darkest hour which always precedes day had covered all things for the last few miles. It was only by the aid of the friendly Indian, who led the oxen at the head of the advance team, that we had been able to find our way to this camp. The women and children of course were asleep in the wagons. The men plodded along patiently, and kept very still.

The long, black, haunting box, that had crept down from out the long, strong grass, and had drawn on and over the white shore of salt, following stealthily, silently, certainly as a shadow, had not been seen for hours. And even then it was far in the rear. The salt and the sand were heavy and deep. The man at last, even giant as he was, must have had hard work to move his barrow here. Surely he had broken down, sickened maybe;—"died, let us hope," whispered one to another of the terrified little band as they unyoked the tired cattle and turned them up the banks of the willow-stream, watched them, and kept them close to the willows so that they might not be seen by the Danites.

The members of the little party, as light descended upon the dark waters, found themselves still close to the banks of the glittering lake. They had travelled in a sort of crescent around an arm on the north end of the sea. The camp was a pleasant one. The little island with the three trees was not far away. It lay almost between this camp and the one they had left the night before. The solitary rock, with its horrid association of a dead body in chains, was suggestively near—too near. No one spoke of this as the light came down and revealed it. Yet all thought of it. The willows broadened, and the valley widened up this little rivulet, and the grass was rank and abundant. Quail were heard here piping in the dewy grass. A flock of prairie-hens flew overhead and settled down within near gunshot. But no man thought of raising his gun. The report would possibly bring the unwelcome guest, the ghostly shadow, whom all were hoping, as they prepared their breakfast, keeping the smoke subdued, had gone down in the sea of salt.

One of the men who were watching the cattle declared that he saw a wild creature in the willows. Suddenly, and before it was yet quite dawn, Nettie Lane, now a terrified and half naked woman, crept into camp. What a sight! Woods were not abundant here. These willows were the only kind of protection in which any fugitive might find shelter the whole region around. And here she had been hiding, living on berries, sleeping in the willows, in the tall grass, waiting, praying, for some one to come that way with whom she could trust her life and that which is more than life to woman.

No need of questions or answers now. The dead body and its companions in chains down by the black rock which rose from the lake by the little island, how silently told the whole terrible story. The two mute and sullen Danites that had galloped past, spoke to the man by the coffin and disappeared; the silent men that followed and searched the rank grass and willows, and looked in every direction for some one, need not open their lips now. All understood the whole terrible tale.

"They had been judged, and were not."

The tragedy had taken place, or rather the murders had been committed, on this very spot; as some blood stains a little way up the stream still bore testimony.

Everything, of course, of value had been taken; "they had been judged, and were not." Their property was confiscated to the Church. How the girl had escaped she hardly knew herself. And indeed no one asked directly, You do not understand?

Well, when you reflect that no one could trust his neighbor, you will comprehend why no one spoke above a whisper now; and you will not be surprised that she was not pressed to tell her tale. Words are not the most eloquent things to tell a story with any way. Even the children huddled together in groups as they crept out of the wagons, and understood, and were silent as Indians.

The girl sat down by the water, well concealed, and ate some bread. Then after a while, with the help of some pitying women, she combed out her long splendid black hair and tied it up with a ribbon. She was even then strangely beautiful.

The men kept looking up and down the stream as if half expecting the Danites to dash in upon them from almost any quarter at almost any moment. A steep high hill rose abruptly before us. To move on with the girl and so escape by sudden flight before discovered—this was a doubtful experiment, and yet some wanted to try it at all hazards. It seemed that if we could climb that ridge that rose steeply before us, and drive straight and steadily ahead till we came to Green River, we might escape. Anyway we were too terrified to remain here. Things were packed up, the weary oxen again yoked, and all was ready for an advance.

If you cannot get Arthrophoros of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed.

"Oe thing to our advantage, the old spy is off the track anyhow," said a woman to her husband as she handed him his ox-whip.

The man looked at her, crooked his thumb just a little down the stream toward the lake, and said nothing. There sat the singular man composedly by the side of his coffin, quietly reading a book as usual, and munching a morsel of dry bread.

Just when he had come no one knew. Perhaps he had passed the little party in the night by a shorter path, known only to himself and his Danites.

However, it was all important that no one should seem alarmed at his presence; and then what else could be done? All was now ready for moving on. We could not stop now without showing fear. At the last moment the girl, between two women, and quiet concealed by their shawls, crept into a wagon with a party of children. The little train stretched itself out and began to start bravely up the hill toward the west. The leader stopped, threw up a hand! And there on this hill, right across the dim road, a party of horsemen suddenly drew rein.

"Danites!"

It was whispered—this one word, and that only by the women. The train, which had not fairly started, was stopped, the children came out of the wagons. The girl even came out, and there was no concealment of any kind. This was best and honest. These people were not prepared or disposed to fight. The first impulse of an American is to fight when wronged or in peril, no matter what the odds. But when hunted down, awed into submission by this semi-religious lot of madmen—these Guiteaus—it was quite another matter. Even a larger party, I am sure, had stood still and waited the approach of the Danites as this party did.

There was but one question. Had the girl's beauty saved her, or had she escaped by chance and skill? Would her beauty save her now? Not likely. She knew too much now to live.

The party of armed and long-haired horsemen rode down the hill toward the camp, against the rising sun, very leisurely now. Their long desperate search was over. They knew at a glance from the hill that the fugitive was with this party; that we were trying to set out with all speed at this unnatural hour to save her by flight.

The girl's first impulse was to dash into the thicket again. But she was very weak and wretched. Better to die where she stood. She put her hands to her throat, her breast, as if feeling about in a wild way to know where they would strike her with their long knives as they leaned from their saddles. She seemed choking, and could hardly breath. The world was passing away. Her head sank on her breast. She was silently waiting to die.

Artificial cork is produced in Germany by mixing powdered cork with starch and water, and kneading the mass while boiling hot until thoroughly mixed. This substance is then poured into moulds for forming the article, and afterward dried at a very high temperature. The material is said to be quite light and to possess non-conducting properties.

A GENUINE SURPRISE.—Many persons when suffering from Rheumatism or Neuralgia remain indifferent to what will relieve them, until they have tried a multitude of remedies in vain. Let no man or woman despond till Arthrophoros has been tried.

Says Rev. Charles E. Harris, of New Haven: "Was advised to try ATHROPHOROS for acute Rheumatism, but paid no attention to it, regarding the specific as among the thousand and one other things advertised as cures. But after a time I tried it, and found that it acted like a charm. Have been quite free from the disease ever since."

WANT OF FAITH.—If Fred Ingram, the druggist, does not succeed it is not for the want of faith. He has such faith in Dr. Bosanquet's Cough and Lung Syrup as a remedy for coughs and colds, consumption and lung affections, that he will give a bottle free to each and every one who is in need of a medicine of this kind.

M. T. WOODRUFF.
FRIDAY, APRIL 4, 1884.

The Cincinnati Mob.

In place of comment upon the circumstances which have resulted so terribly in Ohio's leading city, we reproduce the language of the Free Press and Post and Tribune of Detroit.

Says the Free Press: The riot in Cincinnati teaches two things: First, that there is in this country a growing impatience with the sheltering of criminals behind the cunning trifling of criminal lawyers, the sentimentality of juries and the technicalities of the higher courts; second, that there is a rude and brutal element which needs only a pretext to burst into violence and liable at any time to get beyond control.

The case in Cincinnati which provoked this outbreak was especially aggravating. Berner had with another hired man deliberately murdered his employer for $100 in money. In spite of his confession, of the evidence and the charge of the judge, the jury found him guilty of manslaughter only. It is charged that the jury was packed by Berner's counsel with friends of the accused and that in this sense, at least, the verdict was a corrupt one. With more than a score of others, he now stands trial at Hamilton County, whose trials have been postponed, or the verdicts against whom have been overruled, set aside and new trials granted, popular indignation and patience gave way, with most lamentable results.

There can be no other palliation for this outrage than that offered on similar outbreaks in the barbarous frontiers. In spite of its apparent civilization society is so disorganized, so uncivilized, that it cannot enforce law and protect life and property. All such barriers, and props and defenses of social order have been broken down, and the people fall back to those methods and ways common to a rude and barbarous life.

"Unscrupulous advocates and technical judges must bear their share of the blame, as well as the community at large, which does not respect law nor insist upon its enforcement."

All over the country there is the same looseness in the administration of justice, and everywhere there is danger of the same tumults and defiance of law which is observable at Cincinnati. This feeling will be aggravated by the unfortunate incidents of the Cincinnati riot. The calling out of the militia was quite unnecessary. Up to that time the mob had been kept at bay, and the main consequence was the shooting of policemen who were defending the murderer, and death or injury of spectators.

The Post & Tribune views the case as follows:

One of those wild popular trials which it seems every city is liable to take place on Friday night in Cincinnati. The real cause for the uplifting was a belief that the criminal classes and a political ring acting in concert with them were in control of the city and making it a part of their program to protect criminals from punishment. The immediate occasion of the outbreak was the verdict of manslaughter rendered on Friday against William Berner, who, assisted by a man named Palmer, brutally murdered his employer, William H. Kirk, on Christmas eve for the simple purpose of robbery. The two men were employed in Kirk's horse sales stable, where the crime was committed. Both made full confessions, but in spite of that Berner, by the aid of a criminal lawyer of local notoriety named Campbell, was let off with a conviction for manslaughter only. Threats of violence were immediately made against the jurors, and the public indignation was so great that a meeting was called for evening in music hall to see what should be done.

The assemblage was addressed by reputable citizens and seemed orderly enough while in the building, but when the crowd went out into the street some one raised the cry, "To the jail! Come on! Follow me!" Hang Berner!" and thereupon an immense mob proceeded to break into the jail, which they finally attempted to burn. The prisoners remained safe in their cells through all the commotion, but the conflict between the rioters and the militia resulted in sad loss of life, as fully detailed in the telegraphic reports.

Berner last evening after having been quietly taken out of the city and sent on his way to the penitentiary at Columbus—which fact was unknown to the Cincinnati populace—but the train was boarded at Loveland by a mob through whose blundering he was enabled to make his escape, though it is refreshing to know that he was afterwards recaptured, and is now safely lodged in prison, which, just at present, he will have no desire to leave. Another mob met the train at Morrow, near Loveland, and both mobs were still on the ground when the next train came up from Cincinnati.

The events of the last two or three days have shown clearly enough that the dissatisfaction with the administration of the law is intense, and that it is not by any means confined to Cincinnati or to Hamilton county. The mobs at Loveland and Morrow were quite as furious as the one that broke into the jail. While it is not probable that many who would rank as leading citizens took part in the riot or encouraged it, there can be no doubt that the great body of the people are indignant at such a loose administration or justice as would allow a murderer like Berner to escape hanging. While the outbreak is most lamentable in its results, and indescribable in any group, it will, at any rate, give the country a good opportunity to show that the criminal law shall be faithfully executed, and that juries shall not be permitted without reproof to stand between murderers and their just punishment.

Who Wrote That?

We have waited for a book that would enable us at once to put our finger on the quotation we wish or trace home any quotation to its author. The work we have been waiting for has appeared in the Hoyt-Ward Cyclopedia of Quotations, with its 50,000 lines of Concordance. This is the only Cyclopedia of Quotations ever published. We agree with the Boston Post when it says that this work is as indispensable as Worcester or Webster. It is the only standard book of quotations, and with the New York Herald, which pronounces it "By long odds the best book of quotations in existence."

THE EMPORIUM.

It is the FUNNIEST time that ever was to pick out your WALL PAPER and CEILING DECORATIONS now. The Stock at the EMPORIUM is larger and better than ever before. It is so easy to find the prettiest papers ever made by calling at Frank Smith's that it is nothing but FUN. And then when you have it all picked out don't take but a trifle to pay for a bundle as large as a barrel, and that is so awful FUNNY. But the FUN of the thing is, that after you have looked it all over, Frank Smith takes it just as well if you buy as he does if you do not, and probably better, but he likes it anyway. And as Papering and Painting go hand in hand, Frank Smith has a full line of the very best Paints, Varnishes, etc. You can get any quantity you want, from a pint to a barrel, all ready to spread, and any color you may wish. A large stock of new and beautiful Curtains just received. Also, and don't you forget it, this is the place where you can get the 1001 articles of everyday use and want, better and cheaper than anywhere else. Wm. Powell, M. D., whose interest is now in the Emporium and its patrons and friends, has a fine office over the store, where he can be found day or night ready to go to the help of all who may have bodily ailments. Calls made by telephone or otherwise at Frank Smith's residence or store for Dr. Powell will receive prompt attention.
